Greenfield Mills
Licksville
Private

C. 1830-1890

The town was the site of Greenfield Mills, probably built by Isaac McPherson of Baltimore. When offered for sale by the trustees of his estate on July 23, 1831, the mill was described as a four-story stone structure with four pairs of six-foot burrs, packing eighty to one hundred barrels of flour a day. The Greenfield Mills Post Office was established in 1836. Currency issued by the Frederick Town Branch Bank, dated "Greenfield Mills, Maryland January 1, 1838", shows the mill building. The 1850 Census lists Meredith Davis as owner of the water mill worth $25,000 bushels of "offhaul" worth a total of $61,000. Davis's estate was offered for sale in 1858, the mill equipment being described as "almost new." In the 1860 Census the Robert Brothers are listed as owners of the mill. An 1872 Atlas shows Greenfield Mills as owned by B.V. Newcomer and J.L. Roberts. The Patron list in the Atlas lists James L. Roberts as postmaster, who settled in the area in 1860 and manufactured the celebrated "High Grade Flour." The 1886 General Directory of Frederick City listed farmers, a shoemaker, blacksmith, wheelwright, general store owner, and grist and sawmill owner at Greenfield Mills. Fire destroyed the mill in the 1890's. Only a sawmill and a few houses remain in the community.
